Michelle,

You were ordered on June 27, 2001 to provide me with the original photo albums from 1993 through 1996 and to provide all the framed pictures except for the two nudes in your possession. You were also ordered to have the 1997 and 1998 photo albums color copied with me getting the copies.

18 days have now passed since the order and you have not provided the albums and the pictures. Demand is hereby made that you have them available for me to pick up on Tuesday 7/17/01 when I pick up the children. If you do not have them ready, I will have the Sheriff enforce the court order.

Also, to give you a heads up, the company is filing for bankruptcy protection. Federal law will now have jurisdiction over the company and not family law court. Under Federal law, I am aloud to only take $3,500 per month in salary; (instead of $10,000) for the first two months. After that, it takes federal court approval to even take a dollar in salary. Therefore, by the August 21, 2001 hearing, there will be no subjectivity of what my compensation will be. Your support will almost go to zero and you will have to go to work. You may even have to pay support to me.

Additionally, as soon as the bank and the bonding company sue me for my personal obligation, I will file personal bankruptcy as well. In this event, the federal court will take jurisdiction over our estate and the property settlement will be on hold until my personal bankruptcy is done.

It is sad that you have caused all the pain and financial loss because you had an affair and could not keep your marriage vows. And that you have your three attorneys continue to delay and delay and run up the legal bills.

I expect all the money to be gone in less than two months. The property settlement will then be very easy.

Once again, please have the pictures ready Tuesday. If not, I will ask the Sheriff to enforce the order when you pick up the children on Wednesday morning.

Very truly yours,

Steve K. Zinnel
